This new conference will provide a forum that facilitates active engagement between international researchers and practitioners to explore the evidence that guides genetic counselling and the communication of genetics in mainstream medicine, thereby enhancing clinical practice. It will bring together academics and practicing clinicians (genetic counsellors, genetic nurses, and others specialists using genetic technology in their practice).

Topics:

- How the public engage with genetics
- Becoming a patient: the first conversations about genomics
- Counselling under scrutiny
- An evidence base behind counselling
- Outcome measurements
- Communication models in genetic counselling
- Ethical and social issues
- The future of the genetic counselling profession

A limited number of registration bursaries are available to attend this conference. Please see our website for full details:
